

Retail Merchandising Units (RMU's)

from AJC Retail

Modular & mobile retail units, designed to fit any shopping space.

Shopping Centres

Retail merchandise units are a common sight in shopping centres. Here, they are often located on the main concourse, a position provides them with 360 degree visibility. This excellent location not only ensures that the units stand out, but that they are easy to access for shoppers.

Airports and Other Transport Hubs

Airports, train and bus stations are other very common locations in which you might find retail merchandise units. These transport hubs attract a diverse range of passengers, from holiday makers to commuters. The needs of this disparate audience can have a high degree crossover, making it possible to identify a product range for a retailer.

Fairs, exhibitions and concerts

Arenas that host things like as fairs, exhibitions and concerts may be empty between events. So it may not make financial sense to locate a static shop here. Retail merchandise units are mobile so can be moved in and out as and when they are required.

Festivals and sporting events

Events such as these often take place in locations that have been temporarily converted. This includes town squares, city streets, and even fields. They can attract many thousands of visitors at a time. While the audience would generally be hard to reach for a static shop, the manoeuvrability of a retail merchandise unit puts them in grasp.
